Shermco Industries Sales Team Benefits Habitat for Humanity Projects

Dallas, TX: During Shermco Industries’ national sales meeting on January 19, over 50 volunteers from the sales and marketing departments worked together to paint the exterior of two Dallas Area Habitat for Humanity houses in southern Dallas. This replaced a team building event typical for a corporate meeting and was very well received by both the employees and the charity, fulfilling needs of both organizations.

“Shermco is always looking for good ways to give back to our communities wherever we do business, and this was a great opportunity to get the sales team together and have a lot of fun working for a great cause,” said Steve Camber, senior vice-president of sales for Shermco.

Amy Glover, director of volunteer services for Dallas Area Habitat for Humanity agrees, “It is always great to have an enthusiastic group of volunteers like the folks from Shermco. They safely accomplished a lot of work on our projects and had a wonderful time doing it. We look forward to doing this again with them next year or anytime with other groups like Shermco.”
